OVERVIEW

PUC-Rio has currently more than 300 student exchange agreements and offers several double degree programs.

Besides student exchange cooperation, the university maintains academic partnership with many universities around the world in order to promote joint research, promotion of scientific events, conferences and seminars, orientation and co-orientation of dissertations and theses for Master and/or Doctoral degrees, participation in examining boards and commissions, staff mobility and whatever other activity of an academic character.

This list may change due to the establishment of new agreements or the end of partnerships.

Students interested in student exchange programs should contact the Central Coordination for International Cooperation (CCCI) for further information.
